What could go wrong? What hazard have you identified? What are the risks from it?	Who is at risk?	What are you going to do about it? How are the risks already controlled? What extra controls are needed? How will they be communicated to young people and adults and remain inclusive to all needs?	Review & revise What has changed that needs to be thought about and controlled?
Tables and chairs (and other obstructions) – injuries to participants or leaders setting up, moving, or collapsing the items.	Young people and leaders	Leaders and Young Leaders oversee and help with setting up and moving tables and chairs. No one carries tables alone – at least two people carry each table. Chairs to be stacked on trolley and ensure all chairs stacked correctly. Leaders to ensure all tables when setup by young people are checked before activity starts.
Cooking equipment – is it appropriate for the activity? Risk of burns and fire	All present	Check cooking equipment is in a hygienic and generally good condition, appropriate for the planned activity, and is the right size for everyone taking part. Leaders consider which parts of the activity need to be done by adults, or with close supervision. Make sure there's enough space between participants. Think about their location in the kitchen or main hall. Make sure there is good ventilation
Sharp items – injuries from mistakes or misuse.	All present	Leaders count out the sharp items and are clear on how many are being used. Leaders count sharp items back in to make sure that all are returned. Adults or Young Leaders supervise young people when they're using sharp items – at least one adult or Young Leader for each group.

Never be afraid to stop an activity if it is becoming unsafe!

Don't forget, as part of your programme planning, you should have contingency activities in reserve just in case you can't do what was planned or you need to stop half way through. Make sure this is shared with those involved, so everyone knows how to respond. You should have risk assessed contingency activities prior to them taking place and communicated key information to those involved as with all activities.
